NYS Bar Association Referral Service

When you call the New York State Bar Association Lawyer Referral and Information Service (LRIS), you will be asked what county you are calling from, and where in New York you would like to see an attorney. The LRIS staff will ask you to describe your problem. Any information you provide will be held in the strictest confidence. The LRIS counselors are not lawyers and therefore cannot give you legal advice, but will help you find the right resource for your situation. In the event that we do not offer lawyer referrals in your county, we will provide you with contact information for a lawyer referral service that does. Our service does not list Pro Bono (free) attorneys. If you are referred to an attorney through the lawyer referral service the attorney will provide you with a half-hour consultation for $35. (Free consultations are given for personal injury, social security, medical malpractice, veterans and military law, unemployment or workers' compensation.) During your visit with the attorney, you and the attorney will discuss your matter and decide what further action to take, if any. There is no obligation for you to hire the attorney, nor is there any obligation on the part of the attorney to take your case. If the attorney agrees to represent you, the attorney will charge you at his or her regular rates.

Center for Divorce Education

Through an online interactive format, parents learn effective skills that will immediately change the way they interact. Five realistic scenarios are enacted and critiqued in streaming video. Participants then choose from among realistic solutions and explore different ways of handling the conflicts. Each section includes in-depth tutorials, question and answer sessions, and a quiz to further engrain the new skills. Both effective and ineffective solutions are depicted for each problem faced within these issues. This is then followed by comprehensive critiques and explanations of the skills and communication methods viewed. Through these lessons parents will learn how to improve their interactions through active listening, mastery of "I statements", empathy and sensitivity, role modeling, and better overall communication skills. The divorce of one's parents is a major event in the life of a child. Children in Between Online ensures that the accompanying stress is minimized, the long-term psychological burden is eased, and the whole process is made more understandable and manageable for the parents so that children will benefit. In the Online version the topics that are discussed are:

Money Problems

Children Carrying Messages between Parents

Long Distance Parenting

Quizzing Children about the Other Parent

Putting Down the Other Parent

Learn skills that will immediately change the way you interact.
